TWP. WOMAN PASSED AWAY
AT HOME SOUTH OF CITY

FUNERAL TO BE TUESDAY

Mrs. Albaugh was born and reared in this county and was member of Well Known Family

Mrs. Ida Allen Albaugh, wife of Albert E. Albaugh, died suddenly at their home south of the city Saturday afternoon. The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Rector funeral home, and burial will be in the Brick Chapel cemetery. Friends may view the body at their home as the casket will not be opened at the services.

The funeral services will be conducted by Dr. A. E. Monger, pastor of the Greencastle Methodist Episcopal church. The pall bearers, neighbors of many years, will include Thad Jones, Milo West, Oscar Sallust, Ben King, Charles Crawley and Eugene Keller.

Mrs. Albaugh is survived by the husband and two sons, Roy and Ralph.
She was a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and of the Methodist Episcopal church and took an active interest in the latter and rarely missed participating in some Sunday service. She was a devoted wife and mother, a kind neighbor and a lovely character that the entire community will miss. Although in failing health for some time, she continued her activities in the home and neighborhood and her sudden death was a severe shock to those who did not realize her serious condition.

OXNAM SPEAKS AT CHAPEL

President Oxniam the was chapel speaker Monday morning at the university. Comparing our economic society to the canvas of a painter he paraphrased a statement of Whistler that our trouble is not in being unable to paint what we see but that our trouble will begin when we see what we have painted.

A society, he pointed out, that is based on the acquisitive instinct is bound to end in a conflict of interests. Our objective instead of being profit making should be that of fundamental use. Our income should come from the service we render and not from property rights.

In closing Dr. Oxniam told of seeing the picture "Mussolini Speaks" which played before a mere handful of people while at another theater a waiting line congested sidewalk traffic waiting to hear Amos and Andy.
"We get dictators because we want such as Amos and Andy," he said in conclusion.

Accidents Take Lives Of Seven

VICTIMS OCCUPANTS OF AUTOS HIT BY TRAINS AT CROSSINGS

(By United Press)

Grade crossing accidents took seven lives in Indiana Sunday.

Four were killed at Portland when their car was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train, and three died at Anderson.

Gerald Sisk, 31, driver of the Portland car, failed to heed an electric flasher signal, officials said. Other killed in that accident were Glen Bricker, 22, Edward Steel, 29, and Helen Gibson, 20. Sisk, Bricker and Steel lived in Pullington. Miss Gibson was from Portland.

Victims of the Anderson accident were Hubert Hood, 29, Lillian Hood, 26, his wife, and Miss Gladys Hood, 19, his sister.

Their car was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train at a crossing on the north side of town. Hood's vision was believed to have been obscured by a string of freight cars.

FIRST LADY PREPARES EGGS FOR MACDONALD

WASHINGTON, April 24, (UP)—
The wife of the president of the United States personally prepared the scrambled eggs that the prime minister of Great Britain had for Sunday evening supper.

For 20 years, eggs scrambled in chafing dishes at the table have been the principal dish of the Roosevelt's Sunday evening suppers. This same informality prevailed last night, even though the guests happened to be Prime Minister MacDonald and his daughter rather than some old neighbors.

AKRON VICTIM BURIED

MILROY, Ind., April 24, (UP)— Funeral services were conducted Sunday for Gerald Tomes, Milroy, victim of the Akron dirigible disaster. Nearly 1,000 persons watched as a three-gun salute was fired and taps sounded at the Flatrock river bridge. Services were sponsored by the local American Legion.

INFLATION CONSIDERED BY SENATE

PRESIDENT'S EXPANSION PRO-GRAM UP FOR DEBATE IN UPPER HOUSE

WASHINGTON, April 24, (UP)—
The most momentous week in postwar American financial history begins today with the senate debating and preparing to approve an extraordinary grant to President Roosevelt of power to expand credit and currency.

Mr. Roosevelt is eager for the authority—unmatched by that according any chief executive since congress told Abraham Lincoln to start the money presses spinning in 1862.
But supporters of the administration inflation bill, sponsored by Senator Thomas, Dem., Okla., emphasize its objective is far different from the 1862 greenback issue. They explain the added currency contemplated in this economic emergency is not greenback money and would be kept sound by a redemption fund in the treasury.

There are four provisions in the inflation plan pending in the senate today as a rider to the administration's omnibus farm relief and mortgage refinancing bill.

1. Authority for the president to arrange for the federal reserve to purchase $3,000,000,000 of government obligations to expand credit and federal reserve currency.

2. Authority for the president to authorize the issue of $3,000,000,000 of additional currency in the form of United States notes.

3. Authority for a maximum reduction of 50 per cent in the gold content of the dollar.

4. Authority for the president to accept a maximum of $100,000,000 in silver in partial payment of European war debts.

The bill bristles with "authority."
All of it is conferred on Mr. Roosevelt. No provision of the inflation amendment is mandatory—the president may put it into operation or not, as he chooses. On that grounds, some progressive Democrats and Republicans—Senator Borah, Repn., Idaho, is one—complain the plan scarcely is an inflation measure at all.

Some persons smile sly smiles and predict Mr. Roosevelt is hoaxing Thomas and other inflationists. Behind these smiles is the belief the president will not put much of the inflation into effect. It is agreed generally that by adopting the Thomas plan as his own the president has avoided an inflation dispute with a congress determined to enact legislation of some kind looking toward a cheaper dollar.

Mr. Roosevelt has informed his congressional leaders he is eager for the proposed powers so that he may better bargain with foreign statesmen here and later at the world economic conference. The senate is overwhelmingly inflationist, perhaps two to one. The house is eager to vote. Senator Reed, Repn., Pa., and house Republican Leader Snell concede at the outset that they cannot defeat the administration bill.

THIS WEEK'S WEATHER

STILESVILLE DECLARES WAR ON GYPSIES

SHOTGUNS OPEN FIRE ON CAMP FROM TWO DIRECTIONS
SUNDAY NIGHT

FOUR WOMEN ARE INJURED

Gypsies Make Camp East Of Town
To Await Release Of Woman
From Prison

War evidently was declared on gypsies encamped at Locust Camp, just east of Stilesville, about 11 o'clock Sunday night, when two shotguns in the hands of unknown persons, opened fire on the camp from two directions. Nearby residents said ten or twelve reports were heard. The shooting wounded four women asleep in tents and threw the camp of gypsies into a turmoil. Hendricks county authorities were investigating the shooting Monday.

It was said the gypsies established themselves at Locust Camp to await the release from prison of a gypsy woman, Mary George, who was given a 60-day sentence in Morgan county for extracting money from the pocket of a filling station operator. Their presence at Stilesville has been highly undesirable, it was said, especially to nearby residents.

Dr. Wright of Stilesville, who was called to pick No. 4 shot out of the wounded women, said none of them were seriously injured. Gypsies were boiling about their encampment like a flock of startled geese following the shooting, it was said.

Pump guns evidently were used by the persons who fired directly into the tents of the gypsies. Tents were riddled by the small lead pellets.
Dr. Wright said he picked numerous shot out of the injured gypsies.

Between forty and fifty gypsies occupy the present camp, it was said.

BURNS CAUSE DEATH

PORTLAND, Ind., April 24, (UP)— Burns suffered in an oil explosion caused the death today of Mrs. Edward Stitzer, 39, living six miles northwest of here.

Her husband's arms were so badly burned that amputation may be necessary and their son, Robert, was burned about the hands, physicians said.

The explosion occurred when Mrs.
Stitzer tried to start a fire with kerosene.

POLICE ARREST TWO

BERLIN, April 24, (UP)—Munich plotting the assassination of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, the Telegraph Union reported today.

communist and a former resident of Russia. His companion was not identified. Police refused to divulge their names or details of the alleged

Change Made In Court Reporter

MISS McALLISTER TO INDIANA-POLIS; PLACE TAKEN BY
MRS. EFFIE BALTZ

Announcement was made Monday of the appointment of Miss Mona Mc-Allister as reporter for the state industrial board by Gov. Paul V. Mc-Nutt.

Miss McAllister, who has been reporter for the Putnam circuit court for the past twenty-two years, was highly recommended for her new position not only by Greencastle lawyers but by various attorneys in Indianapolis and other cities. She is capable of accurately transcribing two hundred words a minute in shorthand.
Her ability and experience in this line of work makes her well qualified for the important post she will hold in the future.

Wilbur S. Donner, judge of the Putnam court, stated that he had appointed Mrs. Effie Baltz as reporter to succeed Miss McAllister.

Mrs. Baltz, it was said, will serve out the remainder of the court term.
She has had experience as Terre Haute court reporter and with the public service commission the last four years, being the first person appointed to an office by Harry Leslie when he became governor in 1929.

STOCK QUOTATIONS HIGHER

NEW YORK, April 24, (UP)— Stocks opened strong and active today with huge blocks turning over.
Gains ranged to more than a point.

Meanwhile the dollar continued to decline in relation to European currencies in all markets. Cotton jumped 50 to 75 cents a bale on top of a rise here last week of $3.20 to $3.60 a bale.

Stocks added to their advances of last week which extended to more than 10 points and brought many issues up 50 to 300 per cent from their lows of the year.

CHICAGO, April 24 (UP)—Bullish domestic and foreign news gave grain the impetus for another rise at the opening of the Board of Trade here, wheat swinging up 1 3/8 to 7-8 above Saturday's close.

CHINESE CLAIM TWO VICTORIES OVER JAPANESE

NIPPON TROOPS REPORTED RE-TREATING TOWARD GREAT WALL MONDAY

PEIPING, April 24, (UP)—Half the Japanese troops which have occupied 250 square miles of China proper were withdrawing today toward the Great Wall and Manchoukuo, American dispatches from Chin-wangtao said.

Chinese claimed two important victories over the invaders.

Chinese military headquarters claimed the Chinese had recaptured the towns of Chienan and Lulung on the west bank of the Luan river north of Luanchow. The victories were won by troops of General Shang Chen, reinforced by 300 mutineers who deserted the independent column of General Li Chi-Chun, the Chinese said.

Li Chi-Chun was reported to be establishing headquarters at Haiyang near Shanhaikwan, after disarming Chinese police of the native city of Chinwangtao.

ROSEDALE BANK ROBBED TODAY

TWO BANDITS JOIN COMPAN-IONS NEAR TERRE HAUTE.
GET $1,500.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., April 24—(UP)—Two bandits who robbed the Rosedale National bank of approximately $1,500 today and kidnaped Fred Hayward, conservator, met two other men in another car near North Terre Haute, local police were told.

Hayward was released after being driven about a mile and half from town.

The bandits headed toward Terre Haute in an automobile similar to the one used by four men who robbed two Terre Haute bank messengers of $40,000 last week.

Fred Connelly, cashier, and Hayward were in the bank when it was held up. Connelly was forced to face the wall while the bandits took all the available money.

TEACHERS PARADE PROTEST

CHICAGO, April 24, (UP)—Thousands of school teachers demonized the financial district today, forced three big banks to close temporarily and heckled Gen. Charles G. Dawes, chairman of the board of the City National Bank & Trust company.

Former Vice-President Dawes became so nettled that he shouted above the din: "To hell with trouble makers."

The teachers, marching in protest at non-payment of $29,000,000 owed them in back salaries, converged on the City National, the Continental-Illinois bank, the Harris Trust and the First National bank. The first three closed.

ACCIDENT CAR DRIVER WON'T TESTIFY HERE

DAMAGE SUIT OF HARVEY S.
BAKER CONTINUED IN LO-CAL COURT MONDAY

TOTAL OF $28,000 IS SOUGHT

Failure Of Important Witness For Plaintiff To Show Up May Damage His Case

Trial of the $28,000 damage suit of Harvey S. Baker of Indianapolis against Leslie W. Prichard of Montgomery county, continued in circuit court Monday with attorneys for the plaintiff seeking to put before the jury reasons why an important witness was missing. The trial Monday was marked by a barrage of questions and objections from attorneys for both sides.

The missing witness was Lawrence B. Shuey, step-son of the plaintiff, who was said to have refused to testify because of family trouble. Shuey was driving Baker's car when it collided with Prichard's west of Ladoga Sept. 27, 1931, and testified in a previous suit of Mrs. Baker against Prichard which was tried in Montgomery county circuit court.

Mrs. Baker is said to have lost this suit which she now has on appeal.

Baker is seeking $25,000 for personal injuries and $3,000 for expenses growing out of his wife's injuries, in the present trial. His suit against Prichard was venue here following trial of his wife's suit at Crawfordsville.

Baker took the stand late Friday and was still testifying when the case was adjourned until Monday morning. He resumed the witness stand Monday morning. Baker formerly was an electric railway conductor but retired of his own accord over the wishes of the company, he said. Attorneys for the defense attempted to bring out that he had retired because of advanced age and physical infirmities but Baker testified that he had passed a physical examination prior to the accident.

Mrs. Baker followed her husband on the stand.

Numerous witnesses have testified for the plaintiff since the case opened Thursday. Injuries suffered by Mr. and Mrs. Baker and conditions surrounding the scene of the accident have been described in detail by witnesses, some of whom, however, have differed as to the exact relation of the two cars at the time of the crash.

ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT

Paul Morgan, 18 year old Cloverdale township boy, was arraigned in circuit court Monday morning on an assault and battery charge filed by his father, George W. Morgan. Judge Wilbur S. Donner found the youth guilty but withheld judgment and told him to return home with his father and attempt to do his bidding as long as he remained with him.

Morgan and his father were said to have engaged in an altercation over some wood cutting Saturday, resulting in the father filing a charge against his son.

Eight-Room House Destroyed By Fire

ONLY THREE ROOMS OF CON-TENTS SAVED BY JOSEPH
ROTH AND NEIGHBORS

Fire believed caused by a defective flue completely destroyed the eight-room house and most of the contents of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Roth, just north of Mt. Meridian, Saturday night.
The loss is partially covered by insurance.

Mrs. Roth said she built a fire in the cook stove and then went to the barn to help her husband with the milking. While they were in the barn, Alva Stone, a neighbor, saw the flames and hurried to the Roth home to give the alarm. Due to the rapid spread of the fire Mr. and Mrs. Roth with the aid of neighbors were able to save the contents of only three rooms.

After the flames and heat drove the fire fighters away from the house they devoted their time to preventing other nearby buildings from catching on fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Roth had purchased the farm home two years ago. They said the house was only partially covered by insurance and that they had no insurance on the contents.

'33 ACTS TO BE READY FOR DISTRIBUTION MAY 8

Robert Mythen, secretary of the state printing board, said Saturday that he has received official notification that the acts of the 1933 Legislature will be ready for distribution May 8. The new laws will go into effect after copies of the acts are distributed to each county. A proclamation by the Governor makes the new acts law in Indiana. The proclamation probably will be issued about June 1, it was estimated.

a graduate of DePauw university, has been selected as alternate for cises at the Boston University School of Law in June.

mencement as a result of winning

MR. ROOSEVELT HAS INITIATED MANY POLICIES

HAS DONE MORE IN 7 WEEKS THAN MANY PRESIDENTS
IN FOUR YEARS

WASHINGTON, April 24 (UP)— Franklin D. Roosevelt already has initiated more important policies during his first seven weeks in office than the average President has in a four-year term.

However, part of them still are in an undigested stage, either awaiting congressional action or in the first phases of administrative application.

Abandonment of the gold standard, beginning of the international economic conversations, multiple efforts to ease the depression and action to bring real economy into the government have made for the President in less than two months a reputation for doing things almost unequalled in the annals of American history.

The following major measures still are awaiting final action by Congress:

Farm relief.

Credit expansion.

Securities control.

Relief for small home owners.

Tennessee Valley-Muscle Shoals development.

Half billion dollar direct unemployment relief bill.

Industrial control program.

A log of major official acts by the President and their subsequent history, omitting some for brevity, follows:

March 6: Closed all banks; 4,000 still closed; declared embargo on gold.

March 9: Sent emergency banking legislation to congress; approved same day.

March 10: Sent to congress a message asking authority to prune $400, 000,000 from veterans' and $100,000, 000 from payrolls; both put into effect.

March 13: Allowed banks to begin reopening on the stagger plan; partially in effect. Sent a 72-word message to congress asking legalization of beer, now in effect.

March 16: Sent farm relief message to congress; still pending.

March 21: Sent unemployment relief message to congress.

Announced plans for army of 250, 000 amateur foresters; about 5,000 now in camp.

March 27: Abolished the federal farm board and created unified farm credit administration.

March 29: Sent to congress a blue sky law message in which he said the seller of bonds must sell them honestly; pending in committee.

April 5: Sent to congress the farm mortgage relief bill message; still pending.

April 10: Sent Muscle Shoals bill message to congress; still pending.

April 19: Took United States off the gold standard.

April 20: Agreed to credit and currency expansion bill; pending.

April 21: Began international conversations with Ramsay MacDonald of England.

gade extinguished the flames.

RUTH JUDD IS FOUND INSANE:
EVADES NOOSE

BLONDE SLAYER TO BE SENT TO ARIZONA INSANE
HOSPITAL

FLORENCE, Ariz., April 24.—Happy and carefree, Winnie Ruth Judd, 28 year old trunk slayer saved from the gallows by a Pinal county jury's verdict Saturday that she is insane, today approached the end of her last day in the Arizona penitentiary.

Today, in custody of Warden A. G. Walker, she was to be transferred from the prison to the state hospital for insane in Phoenix, there to spend the remainder of her life unless her sanity is regained in which eventuality the hangman again would beckon.

Her visitors were limited strictly to members of her family, prison officials and newspapermen. Mrs. Judd conversed and displayed keen interest in activities about her throughout the day.

While Winnie Ruth Judd was spending her last day in the Arizona state prison, attendants assumed from her demeanor that she knew her life had been spared by a sanity jury verdict, but she said no word about it.

Her transfer to the state hospital for insane in Phoenix, planned for today, was delayed because Superior Judge E. L. Green, who presided over the sanity hearing, did not sign the commitment papers after the verdict was returned last night.

Efforts were being made by prison officials to complete the formalities today or early tomorrow so Mrs. Judd may leave the prison and be placed in the care of physicians and psychiatrists at the state hospital.

The convicted slayer of Agnes Anne LeRoy spent most of her time today playing in her cell with her black kittens which she announced to prison matrons, she had named "Mike and Jerry," and "Tom and Jerry."

"Jerry," she said, "is really for Geraldine."

Prison attendants said Mrs. Judd appeared to be in high spirits, but that they have been unable to elicit any comment from her to indicate whether she understands she is to be transferred to the asylum and is not to die on the gallows next Friday, as was scheduled until the sanity jury verdict automatically set aside the court order.

The formal death watch, established two weeks ago, was removed today, but Mrs. Judd was not allowed to receive visitors.

Prison officials were flooded with requests of persons who desired to visit her, but except for her aged parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, no such permission was granted.

Mrs. Judd remained in her cell in the women's ward until her transfer papers were signed, Warden Walker said. She slept soundly last night and ate a hearty breakfast this morning. Matrons said she evinced no curiosity, however, over what is to be done with her.

Sheriff Bowers
Arrests Active
Chicken Thief

JAMES PYLE, 20, OF ROACHDALE
IS IN MONTGOMERY COUNTY JAIL

An active young chicken thief, James Pyle, 20, of Roachdale, was apprehended by Montgomery county authorities Sunday, and a half dozen hen house invasions and one store burglary were confessed by him.

The youth was arrested by Sheriff Verner Bowers and his deputy, Wayne Gentry, after he had been seen at the Jesse Trump farm in the Ladoga neighborhood Saturday night. Five chickens were stolen from the Trump hen house during the night.

Pyle was found at the Trump home when the family arrived home Saturday night. He said that he had stored to get water for his machine. The family thought nothing about it until they discovered Sunday morning that five chickens had been stolen.

Sheriff Bowers was notified and he at once arrested Pyle, who admitted the theft and also said he had stolen chickens from the Lodell Radford and Kenneth Ward farms in the Ladoga vicinity and the Ed Harpton farm near New Market.

After he was accused by Sheriff Bowers of entering the Zachary store at Whiteville Pyle admitted that he entered the store and stole a large quantity of merchandise, including two revolvers and several boxes of shells.

The youth was arrested by Sheriff Bowers and Sheriff Alva Bryan of Putnam county last spring for breaking into a Roachdale garage. He was given a three months' sentence, which was later suspended.

It is believed the arrest will do a great deal to break up the miniature epidemic of thievery in the south part of Montgomery county. Pyle told officers he had no accomplices in any of the thefts, but investigation along that line is still being pressed by Sheriff Bowers.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
Karl Schlemmer, duly certified ship's captain, is the only living person who knows where $200,000 in gold lies beneath the sea. Schlemmer receives a message from a woman and with a few days' delay, Steve McCready, he sets a ship and goes to hunt the hidden gold. The ship runs into a storm and McCready and Schlemmer are the only two to escape in a dingy. During their perilous drift, McCready acquires one-half of the treasure chest. They are finally picked up by passing ship. Three years later Schlemmer and McCready are employed aboard a scientific expedition ship.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER THREE

Before an audience of interested listeners, Dr. Chapman was lecturing on his anticipated trip into tropical waters to collect specimens. He illustrated his talk with a technicolor film of marine life. "I only wish you could go with us when we sail this afternoon," he said. "I wish you could be with us when we go down in our diving bell and see the world of color and beauty at the bottom of the sea. No words can adequately describe the wonders of the deep. The delicate blue greens of the fish—the pink and orange, and lapis lazuli of the coral—the sea flowers, unearthly, resplendent, like some rare, unknown orchids. The incredible creatures of the sea are endless in their variety of form and color. Trichocoryx reticulata—uca morda, tamoya haplocoma, piallania nigra, crustacea and autera—that's how they're tagged in our scientific reports. But here in the unreal world of the sea bottom they are sunsets with fins and floating rainbows. And if variety is the spice of life, pay me for travel' around with you much longer."

"What kind of talk is this between partners?"

"Straight talk. And you feel the same way about it, only you haven't got the guts to come out with it." Steve leaned across the table in a definite attitude of menace. "Now, get this! There's a good chance we'll pull up that chest of gold this time—"

"Chance! Mit all the equipment on dis ship, how can we miss? I ain't worried about nothing dis time."

"Yes, you are. You're worried about how to gyp me out of my share after I've brought the stuff up. That's all you've been thinkin' about for three years—ever since that freighter picked us up. Well, keep on thinkin'." He arose. "And think this over—if you ever try to cross me, you'll land where that chest is—at the bottom of the sea."

"That ain't a threat. It's what the weather mugs call a forecast. With that Steve left, leaving Schlemmer, his eyes blazing with hate, staring after him. The trip was a slow one. Every little while the party would anchor and explore the depths for rare specimens and photographs of marine life, taken through a diving bell. McCready came in for a great many diving expeditions to bring up oddities which were safely stored in tanks to be displayed in public aquariums.

Schlemmer alone was impatient and uneasy.

"My dear Captain," said Chapman. "I think we've explained to you that one of the nicest things "Have you ever looked through a microscope?" asked Diane (Posed by Ralph Bellamy and Fay Wray) then the realm of Neptune is the spiciest place in the world. But there is more than beauty at the bottom of the sea—there is terror—as, for instance, our friend of the genus dibrachiate cephalopoda, otherwise known as the octopus. This one is a comparatively small specimen. Members of the cuttlefish family, notably the giant squid, have been known to reach the vast bulk of ninety tons—as large as a whale—and I promise you that this time we'll bring back at least a picture of this monster of the deep.

"The film you have just seen gives you an idea of some of the results of our last expedition. We hope this time to bring back a far richer haul of the treasures to be found at the bottom of the sea. And now, I want you gentlemen of the press to know how fortunate we are in having secured as captain of our ship, a skipper who has sailed the seven seas—a man so interested in the purpose of this journey that he actually offered his services gratis—and that is why we picked him from among the many applicants. I want you all to meet Captain Karl Schlemmer."

There was applause as Schlemmer arose, bowed, and smiled.

"Denk you, I have told the doctor about certain waters off the Bahamas where we can get wonderful specimens. But the best thing I have been able to do for the expedition so far is to get the services of a man—a personal friend of mine—who will mean a great deal to the success of this trip. Mr. Stephen McCready, the best deep-sea diver in America—if not in the world."

Amid applause, McCready arose and bowed. "I'll never be able to get the hang of those trichocorys, pellichoosis that Dr. Chapman recited off on us a while ago, but whatever they are, if they'll point them out I'll get 'em up."

As he sat down, Dr. Chapman said: "I'm sure that our guests want to hear from the one who has made a friend of science, without whose whole-hearted interest and generous financial support this trip would be a dream instead of a reality. I'm sure Miss Diane Templeton would like to say a few words."

"A very few, indeed," she smiled. "Our ship is called the 'Adventure,' and that's what the trip means to me. There's a word for people who call 'Angels.' I'm the angel of the Chapman Expedition—but I expect to have a devil of a good time out of it." There was laughter and applause as she sat down.

As soon as they could get away from photographers and newspapermen, the Captain and McCready got off by themselves.

"Dis time we get dere," said Schlemmer.

"We'd better get there. I used to figure out all the things I'd do with that gold. Now it means only one thing. Schlemmer—gettin' rid of it."

about this trip is the fact that we don't have to worry about time tables."

"Sure. I know. Don't think I'm trying to butt in, but I guarantee we get much better specimens at that place I told you about."

"Quite so. I'm sure we will," Chapman agreed.

"Schlemmer became eager. 'Denk why do we waste time?'

"Good heavens, man—what's all the rush about? We're not racing anybody, are we?"

"No, no. I'm sorry, Doctor. Excuse me," the Captain said hastily.

of the conversation, "Karl—" he called without turning, and the Captain came over to him. "You pig-headed fool!" McCready exclaimed in a low, but vicious intonation. "Why don't you tell him what you're after after he's done with it?"

Schlemmer was furious. "Dat verreckt eael drives me nuts mit his drifting along like this."

"You've got ants in your pants. What difference does it make whether we get there now, or a month from now?"

"If you wait for something for fifteen years maybe you get ants in your pants."

"Fish don't eat gold—not even gold-fish. I'll keep."

"The longer you stay on this boat the better you like it, ain't it?" Schlemmer asked slowly.

"What gives you that idea?"

"Ven you vas goin' some place, the easiest way to trip up is on a petticoat."

"You're crazy."

"Yah. You don't know what you're talkin' about. They don't even wear petticoats any more."

With that, McCready walked away.

Diane came up to the diver. "There's something I want to ask you, McCready."

"Yeah?"

"Are you rude and snarling, and nasty because you don't know any better, or is it part of your technique?"

"I don't know what you mean," he replied, disconcerted.

"What's the matter with you? Don't you know how to smile?"

"What business is it of yours?"

"If you stop being hardboiled for a minute, I'll tell you." She paused. "Dr. Chapman has spent his whole life in what he calls a career of science, but it really means satisfying his curiosity. He is curious about fish. And I'm curious about human beings."

"You mean men, don't you," he asked.

"Quite so. To me, men are the most interesting of human beings. And you're an odd specimen. I've never run across one just like you before. Genus homo deadpan—the man who couldn't smile."

"It would be fun putting you under a microscope. I'd like to take you apart and see what makes you tick. Have you ever looked through a microscope?"

"No."

"Well, come along." She took him by his arm and started off toward the laboratory.
